

April 13, 2020

To our valued business partners:

We are writing you to update you on the status of our operations in light of the continuing impact of the coronavirus pandemic around the world. The inTEST EMS response team continues to meet regularly to monitor the global situation and to coordinate our response. The health and safety of our employees and business partners are our top priority.

On April 13, 2020, our manufacturing operation in Fremont, CA reopened. Our manufacturing operation in Mt. Laurel, New Jersey remains fully operational. inTEST has been deemed an Essential Business supporting the semiconductor industry and is exempt from any non-essential business shutdowns in California and New Jersey.

Many of our employees continue to work remotely to support business operations and those that cannot work remotely are practicing appropriate physical distancing techniques.

Throughout this challenging time, please be assured that our sales and service staff will continue to provide the superior customer support to which you are accustomed. Please contact us at sales@intest-ems.com with any questions. We will continue to make every effort during this time to minimize the negative impacts on our business partners.

This is a challenging time for everyone, and we remain deeply committed to the safety of our business partners, employees, and others in our communities. We look forward to continuing to serve you and work with you throughout this difficult time and into the future.

We wish each of you good health, both professionally and personally.

Best Regards,

Mark Bradford
